Dear parishioners and friends,

The Flea Market is one of my favorite activities. It brings together people from the whole parish – European American as well as Latinos – and some of our neighbors. God blessed us with perfect weather. The folks that rented tables were very pleased with their sales, especially the many food stands that sold out! I am grateful to the Activities Committee of the Hispanic Community for organizing and facilitating the event.

I would like to share an anecdote from the Flea Market. I asked the parishioner that had about a dozen bicycles (most of which sold), tools, and various household items for sale where these things came from. Cynically, since he is an immigrant, and given the present anti-immigrant sentiment, I jokingly asked if he stole all of this. He laughed and told me no, but that people hire him to clean out their garage or basement and that the items that are in great or good condition he just cannot throw in the dump. In Mexico, he said, I never even dreamt of owning a bike – how could I throw all of these in the dump? The ensuing discussion leaves me with much to reflect on. The US culture is a culture of abundance and waste, and as Pope Francis so frequently said, a “throw-away” culture. Our immigrants come from a culture of survival. For as much as they are demonized at the present moment, they have so much to teach and inspire us. A blessing of the Flea Market and the theme of hospitality that emerged from last Sunday’s readings is my own evaluation of how much I take for granted and waste. I am grateful to God for this discussion that challenges me in so many ways.

Sincerely, Father Joseph H. Callahan
